*So many mornings I'd wake to the sound of the birds in the trees.
The grounds. The animals.
A place this special needs to be shared.*

Never would I have imagined that another would exchange their vows under the same canopy of ancient oaks as I did. How delighted I feel knowing that it is now your turn.

This great room was once just a ranch house filled with the laughter of my two boys. Love still fills the air.

Sometimes I go searching dusty old antique stores. I am looking for nothing, but end up finding everything.

I laugh about the days standing in the pouring rain, harvesting natural river rock uncovered by the rushing creek.

My handpicked stones now rise as our grand fireplaces.

Memories are made here.

I was raised in a sleepy little town in the Midwest and fondly remember watching my mother toil over her beloved rose gardens.

It began during a trip to Portugal nearly forty years ago. My late husband and I had aspirations to build a home for our two sons', imagining a small village, with a chapel and quaint little bungalows sprinkled around the rolling hills. Today those hillsides are filled with white twinkling lights and many of the treasures gathered from our travels. Even in the name "Rancho Las Lomas" his legacy lives on with his initials.

Today, the stone washed garden pathways are lined with my favorite roses. You will still probably find me out with my clippers tending the gardens. The land. The animals. The love in the air.

A place this special needs to be shared ... welcome!

Jeannie Lawrence

The Rancho Family

I love sharing my vision with my family and the extraordinary Rancho extended family. They all live and breathe Rancho Las Lomas as much as I do.

My son, Brett, fearlessly manages the daily operations and is not only our chief people person but the owner of our featured Towne Park Brew. Julie Smith is remarkably gifted effecting all special events and educational tours for the Wildlife Foundation and is our resident animal whisperer. Juan Naranjo has been the stonemason and head of development team for decades.

Kara Felten, Director of Special Events, is the most knowledgeable and delightful first voice you'll ever hear when you call us.

We hope to see you soon ...

Knowledge Is Understanding

The mission of the RWF is to educate and inspire our community and to provide the best home possible for the magnificent animals in our care.

We welcome local school aged children and encourage them to become advocates with us. It is vital we help everyone who visits understand every creature of this planet deserves to live with compassion and respect.

You have the wonderful opportunity to support the foundation by commemorating your visit or event in stone...literally! You can also have one of our colorful parrots join you and your guests for cocktails and hors d'oeuvres.

TOWNE BLONDE

Some might say I'm easy... drinking that is, but here's the real deal, I just wanna be your go-to gal for any sunny day. My golden hue shines bright with my lightly roasted barley. I'll be your sweet and smooth with a malty twist. You need a refreshing woman by your side that will keep you going. After all, it's true what they say, blondes have more fun.

Anna xoxo

"The cinematography was exceptional and our entire video looks as if it was a movie...the way it was edited was pure perfection!"

Alexia & Tim

"Let me start off by saying LOVE LOVE LOVE LOVE LOVE!!! You listened to our traditions and must have's and you created a master piece."

Belina & Chris

"Thank you thank you for LOVING what you do and for all the CARE you put into your work. It shines through and we really appreciate it!"

Cat & Gee

"The care and attention to detail, and the excellent taste with which it was compiled is really extraordinary... not too dramatic, not cheesy ever, authentic, reverent at times, beautiful and joyful."
